FATALITY ON I-10—Alabama resident Aubrey Dawn Wilkerson died early Thursday morning when his car, now stored at Lacoste's Wrecker Service yard in Kiln, was involved in a head-on collision with an 18-wheel truck near the Kiln exit on I-10 in Hancock County. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

I-10 crash fatal to Alabama man

An Alabama resident was killed about 3 a.m. Thursday on Interstate-10 about 10 miles north of Waveland, according to a report from the Mississippi

Highway Patrol.

Aubrey Dawn Wilkerson, 53, of Lineville, Ala., was apparently driving east in the westbound lane of I-10 when his vehicle collided head-on with an 18-wheel truck driven by William D. Hamlett, 32, of Neola, Iowa.

Wilkerson was dead on impact, according to the highway patrol report. Steve Lacoste, who picked up Wilkerson's car for Seymour Lacoste's wrecking yard, said it took about two hours to remove the vehicle from under the front of the 18-wheeler and get Wilkerson out.

Wilkerson's body was sent to Riemann Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis and has been transferred to Benefield Funeral Home in Lineville for services and burial.

Former Waveland resident killed in Missouri crash

A former Waveland resident was killed Wednesday when two cars collided near Willow Springs in south-central Missouri.

Also killed were three members of a Tennessee family. Police officials identified the Mississippi victim as Dr. Jesse Harrison Life, 78, of 1027 Greenwood Drive, Biloxi.

He was, they said, alone in one of the cars.

The other victims were identified by the Missouri Highway Patrol as Shelley

Brown, 32, the driver of the other car; her brother-in-law, Kevin L. Brown, 24; and her son, Carl Brown Jr., 8, all of Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. Brown's daughter, Belinda Brown, 5, was injured in the crash and was listed in serious condition at St. John's Regional Health Center in Springfield, a hospital spokesman said.

A Highway Patrol investigator at the scene said there was no indication of what may have caused the head-on accident, which occurred about 7:15 a.m. on the US-60-63 bypass at Willow Springs.

Wastewater Authority seeks 85 percent federal funding

By DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District met Thursday with Ray Eaton of Eaton-Lewis Partnership, the district's engineering firm, for an update on the district 201 plan.

Eaton said the plan, known as Alternative Three, had been re-evaluated and a copy of its latest version, which calls for the discharge of treated wastewater into Edwards Bayou, will be forwarded to Bureau of Pollution Control next week.

Copies will also be placed in the Bay St. Louis and Waveland city libraries and the Hancock County Courthouse, where they will be available for public inspection prior to the district's public hearing on August 6.

The hearing will be held at 7 p.m. at the Waveland American Legion Hall on Coleman Avenue and is designed to collect public input on Alternative Three, which is a fundable alternative to the spray irrigation system previously proposed by the district but rejected by the federal Environmental Protection Agency as too expensive.

The plan now under consideration includes three phases of development, including upgrading the Bay St. Louis lagoon and the Waveland wastewater treatment plant, transferring the Bay lagoon effluent from its current discharge into Watts Bayou to the Waveland Treatment Plant and its outfall into Edwards Bayou.

County areas should coordinate development of new treatment systems with the cities, according to the plan's recommendations. They include four densely populated areas known as Jourdan River Estates, Jourdan River Isles, Garden Isles and part of Shoreline Park.

Areas which will eventually be added include Diamondhead, the Kiln-Jourdan River Shores region, Pearl-Clinton Harbor, Lakeshore, BaySide Park and an area from Breath Bayou to Edwards Bayou.

The plan also recommends that the district obtain additional property behind the East Hancock Fire Station on Chapman Road for possible development of an additional facility to handle county effluent when the system is expanded beyond the four heavily populated areas. Also recommended is acquisition of land between the present Bay St. Louis lagoon and a nearby railroad track, Eaton said.

Eaton and the district board members also discussed critical factors for the approval of funding for the project by the EPA in Atlanta, Ga. If approved, WASTEWATER—Page 2A

Motion for bail denied following murder trial

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Circuit Court Judge James Thomas refused Friday to set bail for Robert Corkern, whose capital murder trial in Hancock County resulted in a mistrial Wednesday after jurors said they were 'hopelessly deadlocked.'

"Bail is available in the court's discretion where guilt is not evident nor the presumption of guilt great," Defense Attorney Yvonne Chapman Sills said.

Corkern, 22, of Shoreline Park is scheduled to be retried in October on a charge of capital murder in the Jan. 27 shooting death of Gerald Comiskey at Comiskey's Waveland home.

Corkern is also charged with murder in the death of Keith McMillan, who also died in the same incident.

Also Friday, Thomas overruled a defense motion to quash the indictment in the McMillan murder case.

"There is no doubt both cases state the same set of facts," Nicholas Haas, co-counsel for the defense told the court.

"The proof of defendant's guilt in both cases is not evident nor is the presumption great."

Sills argued that Corkern's alleged accomplice, Allen Nicolaou, who testified against Corkern in Corkern's trial and who admitted he was the 'triggerman' in the shootings, is 'known as a liar.'

Nicolaou's testimony that incriminated Corkern, Sills said, was not corroborated by any other testimony.

Exonerating testimony, she said, also came from other witnesses during Corkern's trial.

"Had this been a second mistrial," Thomas said, "I would seriously consider a motion to set up reasonable bail."

Thomas said he felt Nicolaou's story was 'impeachable' but 'not unreasonable,' and that his credibility should be decided by a jury.

OTHER PROCEEDINGS

In other court proceedings this week: —Robert J. Fayard, 21, of Falkville, Ala. and Robert A. Maurigi, 22, of Bay St. Louis, pled guilty to a charge that was reduced from robbery with a deadly weapon to simple robbery, of the Sunshine Jr. Food Store at US-90 and Second Street, Bay St. Louis, on Jan. 16.

On the recommendation of Assistant District Attorney J.P. Compretta, who said he had concurrence from law enforcement officials, Thomas sentenced both men to 15 years' imprisonment, then suspended sentence and placed them on probation for five years.

"Just because you're young and just because you haven't been in significant legal trouble before doesn't mean you're entitled to probation," Thomas emphasized.

"Probation is not a right—it's a privilege," he said.

The men were also ordered to make restitution to the store in the amount of $70.37, and each was ordered to pay one-half of the court costs and to pay $350 to Hancock County as partial reimbursement for services of Public Defender William Frisbie.

—Gerald Rocker, 26, of New Orleans, who is serving a five-year sentence at Parchman for grand larceny, pled guilty to a charge of jail escape from Hancock County Jail on Oct. 21, 1983.

Thomas sentenced him to five years to run consecutively with the larceny sentence, then suspended four.

Compretta said another charge against Rocker, for burglary of a dwelling, would not be prosecuted.

Private Industry Council said a success in Hancock

By DENA BISNETTE

The Harrison-Hancock County Private Industry Council held its monthly meeting Thursday at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Public Library.

The Private Industry Council was originally appointed by local officials to handle various vocational programs included under the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982, according to Andrew M. Cutler, who represented Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation at the meeting. Cutler's firm serves as the administrative arm of the Private Industry Council.

About 25 percent of the membership of the Harrison-Hancock County Council consists of Hancock County businessmen, including new member Tim Maxey of Bay St. Louis, Cutler added.

Members of the council's program review committee visited participants in a vocational summer program for youth in Hancock County prior to the meeting, interviewing workers at the courthouse and the Chamber of Commerce. According to committee chairman Mary McNeil, the program is progressing satisfactorily.

Participation levels and funding for all programs were also discussed at the meeting. According to Cutler, next year's allocation for local councils in Mississippi is estimated at $80,000 and will be distributed through the Governor's Office of Job Development and Training and the State Department of Education.

Once local councils receive their allocations, they will use them to finance all or some of 29 vocational programs including training at local junior colleges and vocational centers for the financially disadvantaged, incentive programs, on-the-job training provided through private businesses, and a co-operative youth program with the National Alliance of Business.

Which programs will be financed next year will be determined by the council according to local needs.

Hancock and Harrison County programs arranged through the council presently have a total of about 395 participants, according to council member David Berry.

The council meets again next month in Harrison County.

Cost shifting, clerk error increase hospital billings

A recent item in a newspaper said 93 percent of all hospital bills are incorrect and 83 percent of those bills were in favor of the hospital.

Is that possible? "Yes," said Dr. Robert Freeman, chairman of health care administration at The University of Mississippi, "although those figures are higher than ones I've seen which usually put billing error at 40-60 percent."

Even at low-end estimates, that means half the patients getting hospital bills will be overcharged—some by clerical error, others by a practice called cost shifting.

Clerical error ranges from filling in the wrong code for a diagnosis to difficulties translating medical procedures into covered costs on insurance claim forms.

"Insurance companies have to have a diagnosis," Freeman said. When a patient comes in reporting symptoms, a doctor orders tests to find out what's wrong. The final diagnosis is often hard for the billing office to determine. That's one cause of billing errors and overcharges.

The other is cost shifting. "Cost shifting makes up for charges not fully covered by Medicare, Medicaid and Blue Cross by increasing costs of services to paying patients covered by smaller insurance companies," Freeman said.

Different insurance companies pay different amounts for the same procedure.

Say it costs a hospital $10 to do an X-ray. Blue Cross may pay only $8 for X-rays while Aetna might allow a $12 X-ray charge.

Said Dr. Warren Feld, assistant professor of health care administration at Ole Miss, "Hospitals will probably charge the patient covered by Aetna the whole amount the company allows," while the Blue Cross patient will be charged the hospital's actual cost.

Cost shifting will be more difficult with an expected change in the way insurance companies pay claims, Feld said. If the change does occur it will probably mean reimbursement according to a similar plan designed to check Medicare and Medicaid spending.

In December 1983, Medicare began switching to a payment system that pays for patient care at predetermined prices rather than reimbursing hospitals after the care is given.

Under the old system, there was no limit to what the government would pay for hospital care.

After the cost of Medicare and Medicaid rose to $70 billion, or 10 percent of the 1982 federal budget, the government decided to crack down.

Under the new system patients in government health programs will be assigned to a diagnosis-related group (DRG) upon admission.

Each DRG has a specific reimbursement rate. If the hospital charges more than the predetermined rate, it must absorb the loss. If it charges less, it keeps the difference.

Private insurance companies adopting the same payment plan would put even greater pressure on hospitals to become efficient.

Feld says most hospitals are doing the best they can.

"I don't think many hospitals are guilty of trying to bilk the public," he said. "A lot of them just haven't taken the time and expense to develop more accurate accounting systems."

It's also very difficult to foresee actual costs in some areas, he said, which leads to making up losses from others.

Wastewater.....

proved, grant funding would pay for 85 percent of the system's cost in the four county areas and 75 percent in the cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis.

These factors include the project's regional concept, its discharge of treated wastewater at a single point, its cost to customers when compared to other alternatives and other factors.

Cochran fundraiser slated at Coliseum

Congressman John S. McCain III, originally from the Carrollton area, will be featured speaker Saturday, July 28, at a Gulf Coast fundraising dinner on behalf of the U.S. Senator Thad Cochran.

The dinner is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Mississippi Coast Convention Center in Biloxi.

Congressman Trent Lott of Pascagoula, minority whip of the U.S. House of Representatives, is chief sponsor of the event, and Evelyn McPhail of Bay St. Louis, the Republican national committeewoman for Mississippi, is chairman of the dinner.

"I am grateful to Congressman Lott and Congressman McCain for helping with our campaign in this major fundraising effort, and to Evelyn McPhail and all our friends and supporters who are working hard to make it successful," Cochran stated.

McCain represents the First District of Arizona. He is a retired Navy captain.

The McCain family is originally from the Teoc community near Carrollton. The congressman's grandfather was Admiral John S. McCain who served during World War II in the Pacific. McCain Field at Meridian Naval Air Station is named in his honor.

His father, the late Admiral John S. McCain Jr., commanded U.S. forces in the Pacific during the Vietnam War. The Naval ROTC hall on the University of Mississippi campus is named for the McCain family.

McCain, now serving his first term, is a U.S. Naval Academy graduate and served 22 years in the Navy.

In 1967, while flying a mission over North Vietnam, he was shot down over Hanoi and held prisoner of war until 1973.

He received numerous awards, including the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Distinguished Flying Cross and the Purple Heart for bravery in action.

Tickets for the dinner July 28 are $50 each. A reception for major contributors will be held prior to the dinner.

Only two show up for CDBG hearing

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Apparent lack of interest resulted in cancellation of a public hearing Friday on a proposed Small Cities Community Development block grant for Bay St. Louis.

Herman Briggs of Ron Murray Consultants waited outside Bay City Hall for 30 minutes to conduct the hearing, called for 6 p.m. to discuss eligible activities, program requirements and the rating system for the program.

Interested citizens, agencies and organizations had been invited to attend to provide citizen input for grant application development.

Except for Briggs and a reporter from the Echo, nobody came.

City officials had publicly announced they were considering grant application to the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, Department of Planning and Policy, for a portion of the approximately $30 million allocated to Mississippi for eligible community development activities.

The funds could be used for housing, public facilities and services.

According to the public notice announcing the meeting, the funds must be used:

- To benefit low and moderate income persons;
- To aid in preventing or eliminating slums or blight; or
- To meet other urgent community development needs where existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community and where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs.

Scientists show expanded role of fat in cancer, heart disease

The relationship of dietary fat to cancer is one of the most important and challenging areas of research in cancer and an issue that is particularly confusing for laypeople according to the American Institute for Cancer Research.

T. Colin Campbell, PhD, and David Kritchevsky, PhD, illuminated the controversy and research about dietary fat, one nutrient that many researchers now believe is linked to cancer incidence.

"Large amounts of fat—either saturated or unsaturated—are now believed to increase the risk of developing cancer," according to Campbell, professor of nutritional biochemistry at Cornell University.

Cancers of the breast, colon and prostate are particularly linked to high fat consumption, although both Campbell and Kritchevsky caution that nutrition is only one factor affecting cancer incidence, and that more studies of nutrients are needed before research in this area can be considered conclusive.

The interview highlighted the controversy over the role of saturated and unsaturated fats. Many people have reduced their consumption of saturated fats following the linking of heart disease to high consumption of saturated fats.

"The overriding factor affecting the risk of cancer believed attributable to fat consumption is the total amount of fat in the diet. But research on animals treated with carcinogens suggests that in a low fat diet, the risk associated with unsaturated fat may be higher than the risk associated with saturated fat," says Kritchevsky of the Wistar Institute.

According to both scientists, these research findings might present a dilemma to consumers who have switched to unsaturated fats to reduce the risk of developing heart disease.

"Total fat reduction in the diet is the optimal way of decreasing the risk of developing either heart disease or cancer from dietary fat," advises Dr. Campbell.

Dr. Campbell and Dr. Kritchevsky served on the national Academy of Sciences Committee on Diet, Nutrition and Cancer, which issued the first broad guidelines on diet and cancer in 1982.

The American Institute for Cancer Research was the first organization to distribute these dietary guidelines widely, through its publication, "Dietary Guidelines to Lower Cancer Risk."

Both guidelines advocate reduced intake of both saturated and unsaturated fats.

Campbell is senior science advisor to AICR; Kritchevsky is a member of AICR's grant review panel.

Kritchevsky and Campbell offer two suggestions, based on current research, for reducing fats in our diets.

Kritchevsky suggests that the easiest way to reduce dietary fat is to eat a balanced diet in moderation and concentrate on reducing calorie consumption.

"We may find that the effect of total calories consumed is even more important than the amount of fat," he says.

Campbell advocates a shift to a plant-oriented diet with more fruits, vegetables and whole grain products. "This would reduce total fat and protein intake and increase fiber, beta-carotene and ascorbic acid intake, all of which are beneficial. This type of diet would satisfy both cancer and heart disease researchers," he says.

Both scientists base their advice on data now available on total diet and its relationship to cancer, but warn that research in this area is still inconclusive, particularly as it relates to the interaction on nutrients and other factors to the incidence of cancer.

AICR's dietary guidelines to lower cancer risk, based on recommendations from the National Academy of Sciences Committee on Diet, Nutrition and Cancer are:

- Reduce the intake of dietary fat—both saturated and unsaturated—from the current average of approximately 40 percent to a level of 30 percent of total calories.
- Increase the consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals.
- Consume salt-cured, smoked and charcoal-broiled foods only in moderation.
- Drink alcoholic beverages only in moderation.

The American Institute for Cancer Research was founded in 1981 to support research into the relationship between nutrition, diet and cancer and to expand public knowledge of the results of such recent research as it relates to cancer prevention.

Easter Seals launches bike safety campaign

A public education campaign to reduce bicycle accidents this summer was announced recently by Mrs. John Leigh Hyland III, president of the board of directors of the Mississippi Easter Seal Society.

"Bicycling is a sport growing in popularity," Hyland said, "but it can also be one of the most hazardous."

Each year across the country there are more than 1,000 fatalities and approximately 50,000 disabling injuries resulting from bike accidents.

Many of these deaths and serious injuries could be avoided by observing common sense safety rules.

In an effort to reduce the accident toll the Easter Seal Society has produced a brochure containing safety tips and suggestions for making sure riders have the proper bike size and regular servicing to keep the bikes running smoothly and safely.

"Easter Seals would rather prevent disabilities than treat them," Hyland said.

"We urge all bike riders to get a copy of our brochure 'Bicycle Safety Tips' and share this helpful information with cycling friends and family."

Copies of the brochure may be obtained by contacting the Mississippi Easter Seal Society, 3226 N. State St., Jackson 39216, telephone 982-7051.

With no ready cash to do business, the town of Tenino, Washington issued wooden money in 1932.

SOUTHERN ART
"Painting in the South: Artists and Regional Heritage," a half-hour film highlighting the "Painting in the South, 1564-1980" exhibition currently hanging at the Mississippi Museum of Art in Jackson, can be seen at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, July 26 on Mississippi Educational Television.

The film, produced by Bill Ferris of the Center for Southern Culture and narrated by James Earl Jones, explores themes that appear throughout the history of painting in the South—home and family, religion and the landscape in all its moods—and influences that have affected artists in the South, such as the Southern storytelling tradition.

Included are interviews with contemporary artists Benny Andres, Romare Bearden, Julien Binford, William Christenberry, Carroll Cloar, Rebecca Davenport, William Dunlap, Maud Gatewood, Sam Gilliam and Ed McGowin.

JULIA'S BACK
"Dinner at Julia's," Julia Child's latest batch of half-hour culinary performances, returns to Mississippi Educational Television for a second broadcast.

First seen last fall on ETV, "Dinner at Julia's" can be seen again at 10 p.m., Thursdays, beginning July 26.

Each week there is an "on-location" sequence in which Julia gathers ingredients for the main dish of an elegant dinner party. The on-location segments may find her up to her knees in wild chanterelle mushrooms or trawling for shrimp. Back in the kitchen, she demonstrates a wide variety of food preparation techniques—in her own inimitable style.

The Gulf Coast Sportsman's Club, a newly formed organization in Hancock County is sponsoring a Kids Fishing Rodeo next Saturday.

The rodeo is open to boys and girls aged 13 and under, and registration is free.

A registration form is published in this issue and may be turned in until noon on Saturday.

The rodeo's headquarters will be at the entrance of the American Legion's Memorial Pier, Beach Boulevard and Washington Street, Bay St. Louis.

Scales will close at 5 p.m. and prizes will be awarded in both fresh and salt water categories.

We are hoping many young boys and girls will participate in this big fishing rodeo.

We wish the Gulf Coast Sportsman's Club success in their first big venture.

We noted the Mississippi Highway Department remarking the lines by the many intersections on US-90 this week.

This is good for motorists, and we hope everyone will observe these markings.

It is important to observe all traffic signals.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Trent Lott

NOT THE WAY TO GO

I believe it is wholly unrealistic to imagine that the Congress can sufficiently reduce the federal deficit by tax increases alone. Yet the efforts of the Congress this year have offered no assurances to the U.S. taxpayer that the Congress has any resolve whatsoever to address the spending side of the equation.

Both the House and the Senate prior to the July Congressional recess passed the tax bill conference report, which reconciled the differences in the tax measures previously adopted by both bodies.

I voted against the measure for a variety of reasons, the most important of which is that the bill does not address the problem of getting the Congress to recognize that we have engaged in massive overspending.

I am concerned that this measure increases the premium for medicare recipients by $3 per month by the year 1987.

I do not feel that it deals effectively with the problem of industrial development bonds in Mississippi. We don't have a problem with these bonds in Mississippi, but this bill certainly creates some for us. Its changes would make it very difficult for blue chip industries to come into our state and use industrial development bonds.

The tax bill also has some provisions that would restrict the accelerated recovery that realtors use throughout the country. Writing off real estate investment would take longer—18 years instead of 15.

The measure would raise the tax on diesel fuel by six cents a gallon. The conference report killed a House-passed plan to raise allowable nondeductible contributions to individual retirement accounts which particularly impacts on women. I don't understand the conferees' action because this was not a controversial provision of the bill, and I have not yet received a satisfactory explanation for it.

The conferees also blocked from the final bill an Administration-backed, Senate-passed plan to set up low-tax "enterprise zones" to lure businesses back to central cities. Where enterprise zones have been tried, they have worked quite well in helping people to develop, expand and create jobs and at the same time clean up downtown urban problems.

But the main reason I opposed the tax bill conference report is that I fear that once again the House of Representatives is trying to deal with the deficit only by raising taxes. It still has not dealt with the more serious problem of federal spending.

This is not the way to go at this particular time.

Retirees fit special roles in service to society

TASKS FOR RETIRED PEOPLE
By Forrest Wood, PhD
Department of Philosophy
University of Southern Mississippi

Retired people need to perform four tasks for the rest of us in society.

One, prepare for the future. Two, preserve the past. Three, provide a broad perspective of life. And four, make value judgments untinged with narrow self-interests.

The young can't prepare for the future. Often their view is that the future is now, the present is important, and the future will just have to take care of itself.

The problem is that the future will not take care of itself, we must take care of the future. If we destroy the soil, future generations will suffer. If we spread radioactive substances around our globe, future generations will be affected.

It is mature people who plant trees that will be harvested in thirty years. Often mature people are concerned with the preservation of the soil for future generations. Often mature people devote their time to maintaining the habitat so geese will keep flying south each fall.

Long range plans need to be created. Investments need to be made. If one no longer has the responsibility of raising a family and has sufficient finances, he/she can deal with tasks that have no immediate "cash" return.

An example of filling such a need is the national beautification program, Green Thumb Inc., begun in 1966 during the administration of President Lyndon Johnson.

Participants who must be at least 55 years old receive the maximum wage for a maximum of 96 hours a month. Working only on public property such as our state parks and not replacing workers in the private sector, they beautify our environment while giving purpose and satisfaction to their retirement years.

Research and development are considered items that have no immediate pay-off but are recognized as important for the future.

Preserve the past. Typically the young face the future. That's fine, but the past has value. Mature people are suited for the task of preserving the past. They have knowledge that may be important for that preservation. They have memories that enhance the meaning and significance of past events, objects and people. And they have the advantage point of seeing the past in terms of the present.

Provide a broad perspective of life. A person who is pursuing a particular task has his interest narrowed to that task. Other things must be set aside for the moment while full attention is given to the job at hand.

Things, people and events that will help to achieve the goal at hand are valued. Other things are given no value or are even seen as hindrances (evils) because attention focuses on immediate problems.

Retirement may give one an opportunity to look at the whole. The community may become the object of one's consideration. National problems may now be addressed with the thought and energy that once was consumed by more immediate concerns.

Managers versus workers, unions versus corporations, Democrats versus Republicans, "us" versus "them" often define the values that we hold.

Our interest lies in one part of the society, so we tend to see society from that perspective. What we see as good is often just our side. But there is a need for judgments that are balanced and fair to all parties of the society.

People who have retired from the arena of active battle can help with this. Good judgement does not depend upon the attributes of the young; speed, strength, aggressiveness, etc. Rather good judgement requires thoughtfulfulness, full consideration, experience and disinterestedness.

Young and old share these tasks, but mature people have assets which particularly qualify them for these tasks. They have a perspective for evaluation that is based on experience.

They have a stability which gives balance to competing needs. They have the ability to judge people which comes from the joys and sorrows, happiness and disappointment, trust and betrayal experienced in a lifetime.

As we move toward the bicentennial of the framing of the U.S. Constitution, we should stop and ask ourselves what this Constitution is and whose it is. It is our Constitution, but not simply because we are under it. It is also ours because, as a sovereign people, we are above it.

The most basic characteristic of the Constitution is that it is a law—a positive, man-made law, as distinguished from natural principles of right and justice. The Constitution is a law which the American people have made for themselves and their government.

In making this law, the people were of course guided by their beliefs about principles of justice which they regarded as natural and God-given, and by the long legal and political experience of England and their own colonial past.

Nonetheless, the Constitution is not merely a declaration of principles by which we recognize that we ought to be bound. It is a law by which we have bound ourselves.

This law is the people's law. Everyone knows, as everyone knew in 1787, that the Constitution was drawn up by 55 men in the summer of that year. But it became law only when it was ratified by the people of the several States.

The document itself makes this plain in its Preamble: "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

The sovereign people were the source of this law; they and their posterity were to be its subjects; and their unity, pursuit of justice, tranquility, defense, welfare, and liberty were to be its objects, as they still are today.

Furthermore, this people's law is, by the people's ratification and by its own declaration in Article VI, "the supreme law of the land." All other laws, whether of the nation or the States, are subordinate to it, and the courts of law are bound to keep them subordinate to the Constitution. This duty of the courts is the source, and the only source, of the court's power to declare subordinate laws null and void because they are unconstitutional.

The Constitution nowhere gives the courts, in express and formal terms, a power to nullify laws.

The power is an inference from the supremacy of the Constitution, and was understood to be implicit in the Constitution by the men who wrote it.

To quote but one of them, James Madison said in the Constitutional Convention of 1787, "A law violating a constitution established by the people themselves, would be considered by the judges as null and void."

Now, that is something less than a blank check issued to the courts to find laws unconstitutional because judges, or even Justices of the U.S. Supreme Court, think they are unwise, unfair, or inconsistent with liberty and equality. The Constitution is our law, not the peculiar property of judges.

We therefore have something to say about its meaning. We may begin by demystifying the power of the courts and reminding ourselves that the Constitution does not necessarily mean whatever the judges say it means. After all, we the people made it.

"PASSING ON" FREE ENTERPRISE

Sixty Mississippi teachers—elementary and secondary, from public and private schools—are gathered at Gulf Park College at Long Beach this week with a single purpose. They are there to learn how to more effectively impart the virtues and values of the free enterprise system to their students, and to other teachers as well.

The sixty are at the college at the invitation of the Mississippi Economic Council's American Enterprise Center. All have expressed an interest in acquiring more information and more knowledge about free enterprise, and all have agreed to help train other teachers in Mississippi in the same information and knowledge during the school year.

This is the fifth annual free enterprise summer institute for teachers sponsored by the American Enterprise Center. Through its first four years, the Mississippi-created and Mississippi-funded center has provided free enterprise training for more than 4,000 teachers in the state.

The continuing effort to train teachers by the Mississippi Economic Council, the state's largest organization of business and professional leadership, documents the Council's determination that it will "pass on" to every generation of Mississippians an understanding of an appreciation of our free enterprise economic system—a system which has given the United States the highest standard of living in the world and which has given its people the greatest freedom ever known to man.

Q. I manage a dozen or more people, and I am concerned about their productivity. Any pointers?

A. You may have the cart before the horse. Generally, many management consultants feel that while the average worker can easily increase his or her output, it's important for managers to begin thinking in terms of doing things for their people—instead of doing things to them.

Supporting and paying people adequately should be a top priority. If you do, chances are you will have people committed to doing things willingly for you.

As a boss, you have to let people know what you expect, inspect what is done and support those things that are done well. A management consultant has come up with a list of support items:

1. Write down the name of everyone who works for you. Before this work week is over, tell each one personally what he or she has contributed and how much you appreciate what he or she has done.
2. Bite your tongue if you start to criticize. If you must correct someone, don't do it after the fact. Hold off until he or she is about to do the same thing again and then challenge the worker to make a more positive effort.
3. Visit informally with your workers. Don't look for problems. Look for strengths and things done well. Make something out of every positive thing you find.
4. Eliminate performance reviews. They have a negative impact and there is no need for formal reviews if you constantly give informal ones.
5. Try writing a note to your worker's spouse, describing how much you appreciate the work being done.

Ochsner to install new diagnosis machine

A new way of looking into the human body which can yield information never possible before will be in operation at Ochsner Medical Institutions by the end of the year.

State approval for the installation of a magnetic resonance imaging system was received in mid-June, according to Dr. George H. Porter III, president of the Alton Ochsner Medical Foundation.

Magnetic resonance, which produces images of the body using a strong magnetic field rather than radiation, is capable of yielding extremely detailed pictures of the body.

Useful in diagnosis and early detection of developing tumors as well as identification of a wide range of diseases, the system is now available only at certain clinical centers in the United States, Europe and Japan.

The Ochsner magnetic resonance imaging system, manufactured by the Siemens Company of West Germany, will be housed in a specially designed building, Porter says. The installation, which involves a superconducting magnet weighing eight tons, will be the strongest magnet in the South and one of the first magnets of its strength to be installed for patient use in the United States.

"Ochsner has committed some 3.5 million for both the scanner and the building because we believe that magnetic resonance imaging, with its unique capabilities, will be important not only for diagnosing patients but for multiple research applications as well," Porter emphasizes.

Ochsner recently announced an imminent expansion of its research investigations to include two new areas, molecular biology and cellular immunology, both of which can be advanced by use of the new system.

"Magnetic resonance imaging has emerged as one of the major medical advances of the 1980's. It is in many ways superior to computer tomography or CT scanner in the detail of the images produced, and in that the energy used has no known harmful biologic effects," says Dr. Christopher R. B. Merritt, head of Ochsner's radiology department.

Merritt headed a group of physicians who investigated the possibilities of the new technology. Other Ochsner physicians who participated in the decision-making process before a recommendation was made to purchase the equipment include Drs. John S. Bolton, Ferdinand J. Dastugue Jr., Edward Genton, Gordon B. McFarland Jr., Richard N. Re, Stanton E. Shuler, Roger H. Tutton and Lynn R. Witherspoon.

The Ochsner MRI scanner will be capable of imaging the whole body. However, it has been found uniquely useful in evaluation of diseases of the brain, heart, neck, spinal cord, abdomen, pelvis and the extremities.

Ground will be broken in July for the building to house the scanner. It will be located on the grounds of the Ochsner medical complex near the radiation therapy department at the rear of the hospital building.

The 9,000-square-foot single-story building will include a room lined with a stainless steel radio frequency shield to protect the scanner from interference from outside sources of radio frequency energy. The facility will include the scanner room and control area as well as a conference room, reception area and doctor's offices.

Imaging is made possible by the fact that living tissue is composed of atoms, including hydrogen, oxygen, carbon and sodium, whose nuclei or centers behave like small spinning tops.

Each nucleus produces a tiny magnetic field as it spins. When these nuclei are placed in a strong magnetic field, they line up much like a compass needle pointing in the same direction, Merritt explains.

The strong magnetic field required to produce this effect will be provided at Ochsner by the superconducting eight-ton magnet, capable of operation at field strengths of up to 2.0 Tesla, the magnet's unit of measure.

The magnet is cooled with liquid nitrogen and helium to -270 degrees Centigrade. The scanner is designed so that the patient is placed literally into the center of the eight-foot magnet.

A radio frequency pulse is then applied. This changes the alignment of the nuclei in the magnetic field. After the radio-frequency pulse stops, the nuclei return to their original paths and, in the process, give off energy in the form of a detectable electromagnetic signal.

Careful measurements of the components of this signal provide information about the tissue in which the nuclei are located. The patient feels nothing throughout the procedure, which may last from 30 minutes to one hour.

This information is finally displayed as a detailed image after being processed by a computer, Merritt explains.

"Thus it provides a safe, non-invasive method of obtaining information about the inside of the body never available before with any other technology."

FURTHERING HER EDUCATION—Pam LaFontaine, an employee of Treutel Insurance Agency, recently completed a Mississippi Personal Lines Rating and Riting Course in Jackson that was sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Mississippi. She is the newest member of the Treutel staff and is the wife of Greg LaFontaine of Lakeshore.

Southern Company declares dividend

At a July 16 meeting in Atlanta, the directors of The Southern Company declared a regular quarterly dividend of 45 cents a share on the company's common stock, payable Sept. 6, 1984, to stockholders of record Aug. 6.

This marks the 147th consecutive quarter in which The Southern Company will have paid a dividend to its common stockholders.

The Southern Company is the parent firm of four electric utilities in the Southeast: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, and Mississippi Power.

The Southern Company's common stock is the most widely held electric utility stock in the nation and is one of the 20 most widely held corporate stocks in America.

Martin Marietta reports Michoud leadership changes

Richard M. Davis has been named vice president and general manager of the Martin Marietta Aerospace Michoud Division in New Orleans East effective July 31.

The Michoud Division builds the external tanks for the space Shuttle program and with 4,800 employees, is the largest industrial employer in New Orleans.

RICHARD DAVIS

Davis replaces Kenneth P. Timmons who has announced his retirement at the end of this year and is being transferred to Denver on special assignment to Denver Aerospace president Norman R. Augustine.

Timmons headed the Michoud Division in New Orleans for over five years during which he oversaw the production and delivery of the first 20 external tanks and the successful flight of 11 of those tanks on the early Shuttle mission. "The Michoud Division has enjoyed an impeccable record under Ken's leadership," said Augustine.

"The external tanks have been delivered on time or ahead of schedule, below cost and they perform flawlessly. We are confident that Ric Davis will continue that kind of leadership as we increase tank production rates."

Robert W. Smith has been named to succeed Davis as divisional vice president, external tank project, a position Davis has held for four years. Smith has been director of development for the New Orleans operation since January, 1983.

Davis is a 1951 graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in aeronautical engineering. Upon graduation he was commissioned in the U.S. Air Force, stationed at Wright Paterson Air Force Base where he developed elevated temperature testing techniques for advanced aircraft.

In 1953 he joined what is now the Corporation's Baltimore Division where, after several years in structural design on missiles and aircraft, he conducted advanced design studies on lifting body and nuclear powered aircraft. He then progressed through a series of management positions to the company's space center near Denver where he was successively director of the Skylab multiple docking adapter program, director of engineering and chief engineer, director of NASA programs, and director of mechanical support equipment on the Peacekeeper missile program.

Davis is the recipient of two Jefferson Cup awards, Martin Marietta's highest recognition for professional excellence. He currently serves on the Tulane University Engineering School Advisory Board.

He was born in Fall River, Massachusetts in 1929. He and his wife, the former Sally Ann Patten, live in Slidell, La.

Smith graduated from the Air Force Institute of Technology in Dayton, Ohio with a bachelor's degree in aeronautical engineering and is a former Air Force test pilot. He trained as a Manned Orbiting Laboratory astronaut and has held records for high-performance test aircraft.

He joined Martin Marietta in 1969 as integration manager for earth resources experiments in Denver and moved to the Michoud Division in New Orleans in 1974 where he has held a number of management positions. He, too, is the recipient of a Martin Marietta Corporation Jefferson Cup award.

Smith was born in Washington, D.C. in 1928. He and his wife, the former Martha Yacko, live in Pearl River, La.

Ochsner named one of best

Ochsner Clinic in New Orleans, La., has been designated one of the best clinics in the United States by Town and Country magazine in its exclusive directory of "the Best Medical Specialists in the United States."

Part two of the directory appears in the June issue of the periodical which also includes four Ochsner specialists on its 'best' list.

Five other clinics were included among those listed as best in the country. They are Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.; Cleveland Clinic in Cleveland, Ohio; Lahey Clinic in Burlington, Mass.; Emory University Clinic in Atlanta, Ga.; and Scripps Clinic in La Jolla, Calif.

Town and Country magazine, first published its medical directory in 1978. Part one of the 1984 version appeared in May.

The six clinics listed share certain characteristics. All are organized as group practices. They all have reputations for diagnostic excellence and each has specialists in numerous medical and surgical specialties and subspecialties.

Ochsner Clinic was founded by five New Orleans surgeons 42 years ago. It is now part of a medical complex which includes the Alton Ochsner Medical Foundation with its 530-bed Ochsner Foundation Hospital and Richard W. Freeman Research Institute.

The Ochsner complex also includes the 365-room Brent House Hotel for patients and families.

HITCHCOCK

The Hitchcockian type of thriller "Dying Day" starring Ian McKellen returns to "Mystery" for an encore telecast at 10 p.m., Sunday, July 29 and Aug. 5 on Mississippi Educational Television.

Termed by one reviewer as a "psychological mystery that Alfred Hitchcock might have been proud to put his name to," "Dying Day" tells the story of a man on a train who is forced to listen to an audio tape of artistic noises and natural sounds by an eccentric naturalist.

Prendergast—Martin

Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church was the setting for the June 30 wedding of Patricia Martin of Waveland and Michael Anthony Prendergast of Bay St. Louis. The Rev. Francis Farrell officiated at the afternoon double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Martin of Orlando, Fla. The groom's parents are Mrs. Madeline Prendergast of Bay St. Louis and the late Louis Prendergast Sr.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. John McKenna organist and Darlene LaBot Lee, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of white sheerganza and imported French chantilly over bridal taffeta fashioned with a high neckline, fitted waistline and long fitted lace sleeves. A bustle of lace and sheerganza ruffles extended from the waist to form a chapel train. Matching ruffles formed the hemline.

Her headpiece of matching lace and seed pearls held a cathedral length veil of bridal illusion edged in lace.

She carried a cascade of white silk roses, rosebuds, pulmosa, jubilee gyp, white blossom spray and light blue sweetheart roses with seed pearls and picot ribbon streamers.

Chris Adams of Waveland, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Patty Bodie and Donna Lucas of Hattiesburg; Shirley Prendergast, sister-in-law of the groom, and Paula Boos, both of Bay St.

Louis. The attendants were attired in off-the-shoulder gowns in rainbow pastel colors of sheerganza over taffeta. Each featured a fitted waistline and full skirt with ruffled hemline.

They carried silk nosegays of roses in complementary colors enhanced with freesia, plumosa, jubilee gyp and white lace with matching ribbons.

Miss Dana Martin of Denver, Col. was flower girl. Ring bearer was Michael Adams, a nephew, of Waveland.

Edward Prendergast of Bay St. Louis served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were Anthony Prendergast and Louis Prendergast both brothers of the groom, and David Boos, all of Bay St. Louis, and Mitch Nichols of Dallas, Tex. Serving as ushers were Mike Hill of Bay St. Louis and Larry Ladner of Waveland.

Mrs. Martin chose for her daughter's wedding a floor length gown of periwinkle blue crepe fashioned with lace bodice and vest, sheer sleeves and pleated skirt.

The groom's mother chose a formal gown of mauve crepe with fitted waist and pleated skirt.

A reception followed the ceremony at Virginia Hall at Christ Episcopal.

On return from wedding trip to Atlanta, Ga., the couple will reside in Waveland.

Hoselle—Taylor

JEANE RENE HOSELLE

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose L. Daigre of Bay St. Louis announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeane Rene Hoselle, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilaire F. Dastugue of Bay St. Louis and Mrs. Gerald Hoselle of New Orleans, to William Steven Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Taylor of Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Hoselle was graduated from Our Lady Academy in 1981. After completing two years at Louisiana State University, she transferred to Memphis State University where she will receive a degree in elementary education upon graduation in 1985.

The bride-elect is on the Dean's List at Memphis State and is an active leader in Campus Crusade for Christ.

Mr. Taylor was graduated from Woodale High School in Memphis in 1976. He received bachelor and master degrees in business administration from Memphis State University. He is a student at the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at Memphis State University. Mr. Taylor is actively involved in Campus Crusade for Christ.

The couple will exchange vows on August 25 at Bellevue Baptist Church in Memphis, Tenn.

MR. AND MRS. ALDEN REGINALD MORAN

Moran — Mitchell

Marianne Gail Mitchell, daughter of Mrs. Doris T. Mitchell of Picayune and the late Otho Mitchell, became the bride of Alden Reginald Moran on May 5.

Grandparents of the bride are the late Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. Tate and the late Mr. and Mrs. William C. Mitchell.

The groom is the grandson of Mrs. Eugenia Hoover Moran of Bay St. Louis and the late A. Joseph Moran and the late Mr. and Mrs. Julian Chauvest.

The ceremony was held at New Palestine Baptist Church with the Rev. David Briscoe officiating.

Joy Tate of Houston, Tex., cousin of the bride, served as organist for the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, William Edwin Tate, with her sister, Mrs. Kay Ferlandy, as her only attendant.

The groom's only attendant was his father, Arthur Reginald Moran.

Ushers were James E. Tate of Jackson, uncle of the bride, and Evert Exnicious of Bay St. Louis, cousin of the groom.

Mrs. Delores Case assisted with registering the guests.

After the vows were exchanged among close relatives, a reception was held at the bride's home on Palestine Road.

Mrs. Vonceil Page, Mrs. Yvonne Stewart, Joy Tate, Mrs. Bonnie Tate, aunt of the bride; and Mrs. Wilma Jean Goodwin, sister of the groom, received guests and assisted in serving wedding cake and lemonade and a late luncheon.

The bride is a graduate of Mississippi State University and is employed at the U.S. Geological Survey as administrative officer.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi and is the owner and operator of the Bay Marina.

Out-of-town guests were from Houston, Tex.; New Orleans, Metairie, La.; Clermont Harbor, Jackson, Poplarville and Bay St. Louis.

Following a wedding trip to Destin, Fla., the new Mr. and Mrs. Moran are at home in the Bay Marina in Bay St. Louis.

Thompson—Bunch

Patricia Ann Bunch and Stephen Paul Thompson, both of Waveland, were married June 23 in an afternoon garden ceremony at the groom's family home, "Sunny Pines", 208 N. Central. Judge Bruce Necaise officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Patrick and Brenda Bunch of Waveland. The groom's mother is Mrs. Sydney Dumsor Thompson, also of Waveland.

"Sunny Pines" was built by the groom's great-uncle in the early 1920's and has been owned by the family for three generations. The couple exchanged vows under an ivy covered arch surrounded by floral arrangements in spring colors.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length beige gown fashioned with off-the-shoulder styling accented with a lace ruffle and dropped waistline. She wore a bridal hat of matching lace and tulle and carried a bouquet quet of white daisies, red roses and statice.

Mrs. Patrice Everidge of Gulfport, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in an apricot taffeta floor length gown with off-the-shoulder styling, and carried a nosegay of apricot carnations.

Miss Shannon Everidge of Gulfport, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Michael Pearson of Waveland was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony.

On return from a wedding trip to Gulf Shores, Ala., the couple will reside in Waveland.

The bride is self-employed at The Window Dresser in Bay St. Louis and the groom is employed by Boyce Machinery Corp. of New Orleans. He is a volunteer with the Waveland Fire Department and Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Favres celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Grimshaw R. Favre Sr. celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday, July 14 by reaffirming their vows at the Lakeshore Baptist Church. Rev. Winfred Easley conducted the ceremony.

The couple's son, Reginald, was best man. Mrs. John Langkopp was matron of honor, having been maid of honor in 1934.

Mrs. Kathleen Asher was organist. The Favres have one son and two granddaughters. They were married by Judge Duclos in Arabi, La., July 14, 1934.

Refreshments were served in the church auditorium. Mrs. Rita Breun served the anniversary cake and assisted at the reception.

After the refreshments, Mrs. Favre's niece, Tanya Reichard, played the guitar and sang several songs, including one that she had written especially for Mr. and Mrs. Favre entitled, "Memories."

Out-of-town guests included the Favres' son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. G. Reginald Favre Jr. and daughters, Regina and Lydia of Petal, Ms.; Mr. and Mrs. John Langkopp of Poplarville; Mr. Favre's sister, Mrs. Gladys Ferrara and her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Shaw; the Shaw's daughter, Mrs. Velva S. Dewes, their son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. David Shaw and children, Melissa and Justin of Hattiesburg, Ms.

Also, Mrs. Favre's brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reichard and daughter, Tanya of Mt. Herman, La.; Mrs. Favre's nieces and their families, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sonny Talley and sons, Wayne and Todd of Meroux, La.; Mrs. Norman Bowers and children, Ashley and Wyatt of New Orleans, La.; and a nephew and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Harris and son, Brian of Pearl River, La.

Local guests attending were Mrs. Iona LaFontaine, Mrs. Leola Stoufflet, Mrs. Billie Garcia, Mrs. Doris Richard, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Garcia, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Breun, Mr. and Mrs. James Bosarge and son James, and Mrs. Jackie Watts and daughter.

Mary Lynn Ladner became the bride of Don James Necaise June 9 in an afternoon Nuptial Mass at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Dedeaux with the Rev. Tony Arguelles officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Johnny Ladner of Dedeaux community and Mary Ellen Montgomery of Kiln. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Monroe J. Necaise Jr. of Rocky Hill community.

Baskets of gladioli, daisies, carnations, baby's breath and greenery decorated the altar.

Musical selections were presented by Barbara Larson of Kiln, Annette Moran of Lakeshore and Bobby Devilbiss of Long Beach.

Offertory gift bearers were Michelle Peterson of Waveland, cousin of the bride; Sherie Ladner of Bay St. Louis; Tammy Haas of Kiln and Dana Walker of Dedeaux.

Scripture readings were rendered by Nadine Patton of Dedeaux and Jimmy Allen of Pass Christian, godfather of the groom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown fashioned with fitted bodice; Queen Anne neckline, three-quarter length sleeves and chapel length taffeta train. A wreath of flowers held her fingertip veil of illusion.

She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath interspersed with lavender roses and satin streamers.

Mrs. Lisa Ross of Bay St. Louis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Laura Ladner of Dedeaux, also a sister, was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Kathy Necaise of Pass Christian, sister of the groom; Lanette Randall of Long Beach; Natalie Ladner of Dedeaux, cousin of the bride; Suzette Necaise of Dedeaux; Pam Necaise and Nelda Allen of Pass Christian; Schell Necaise of Dedeaux; and Lynn Necaise of Dedeaux, all cousins of the groom.

The attendants were attired in identical gowns of lavender taffeta with double layer ruffled hemlines. They wore floral wreaths and carried nosegays of white rosebuds, lavender starflowers and baby's breath with lace and ribbon streamers.

Miss Anna Pavolini of Kiln, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Ring bearer was Darren Necaise of Pass Christian, cousin of the groom.

Dean Necaise of Pass Christian served his brother as best man, as did Tim Allen, cousin of the groom.

Groomsmen were Danny Ladner of Dedeaux, uncle of the bride; Brian Ladner of Kiln, cousin of the bride; Kendall Necaise and Cecil Necaise, brothers of the groom, and Rodney Necaise and Gary Wayne Necaise, cousins of the groom, all of Pass Christian; Scott Martin of Standard community and Bruce Bowman of Pass Christian.

Serving as ushers were Ricky Dubulson of Pass Christian, cousin of the groom, and Danny Ladner of Dedeaux, uncle of the bride.

Both of the bride's and groom's mothers were attired in formal gowns of dusty rose hue fashioned with pleated skirts and caped bodices.

A reception followed the ceremony at Annunciation School in Kiln. Tables were draped with lavender and white streamers and were centered with matching floral arrangements.

Assisting at the reception were Betty Necaise of Pass Christian; Gracie Peterson of Waveland; Joann Knight-Joyce Ladner of Kiln and Sandra and M. J. Woodall of Ocean Springs.

Attending the guest register were Natasha Ladner, cousin of the bride, and Paula Ladner, both of Dedeaux.

Following a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the couple will reside in Pass Christian.

Prior to the wedding, the bridesmaids hosted a luncheon at the school May 30 at the Dedeaux School and community center.

The Annunciation School cafeteria was the setting for the rehearsal dinner held at 6 p.m. Mrs. Patricia Necaise, cousin of the bride, was the emcee.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ulrich Sr. of Pass Christian were honored with a reception and dance June 23 at the Veterans Foreign Wars hall in Pass Christian on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. The event was hosted by their children, Jack Ulrich Jr. and Gary Ulrich, both of Pass Christian; Wayne Ulrich of Long Beach and Mrs. David (Diana) Williams of Bay St. Louis. Mrs. Ulrich, the former Irma Jane Santinelli of Bay St. Louis, wore a cream and beige street length dress complemented with a pink carnation corsage. Keith Hoda and the Country Sounds provided music for the dance. The Ulrichs were married June 24, 1959 at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church with the Rev. Kevin Reed officiating. They have one grandchild.

PAGEANT WINNER—Shandi Nicole Ladner, 14 months, and her parents Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Ladner (the former Elizabeth Sue Nameth) display a trophy, banner and tiara won in the Little Peoples' Pageant in Arabi, La. Shandi captured first place in prettiest and best dressed divisions and will compete in the National Baby Contest in November. Her grandfather John Cervato of New Orleans, and grandmother, Betty E. Nameth of Bay St. Louis were king and queen of the pageant.

FIRST BIRTHDAY—Jonathan Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oliver, celebrated his first birthday July 14 at his parents' home with a Big Bird theme party. He entertained his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Ladner, and 14 guests.

Financial Planning for the Two-Paycheck Family —Part 2

There is much uneasiness among consumers today. Even economists do not agree on the economic future. Some think inflation will continue, but others think the economy will stabilize. All families, regardless of economic circumstances, should plan their financial strategies so that they can know they control their own resources. This article will suggest strategies that two-paycheck couples can use to develop a financial plan.

Analyze Your Own Situation

Your family might want to discuss the following questions:

What are your prospects for salary increases, advancement, and benefits such as pension and insurance provisions?

Are both of you satisfied with your jobs?

How many more years of productive employment do both of you have ahead?

Do you need to increase your employment skills?

Have you set personal and family goals which relate to your short-, intermediate-, and long-term needs and expectations?

Do you check on your goals regularly and update them if needed?

Are you expecting any changes in your personal lives that will change your financial picture, such as a change of job location, a change in the number of members in the household (if elderly parents move in, or children who were on their own move home)?

Are you prepared for children's education or large recreational or medical expenditures?

It is important to critically look at your own situation so that you can plan accordingly.

Spending Behavior

Some people are careless in their spending behavior, while others are very controlled. If you or another member of your family spend money carelessly, you may want to put some safeguards on spending habits by avoiding sales, carrying only a little money, and leaving credit cards at home.

Another way of controlling careless spending is by writing down expenses for a few weeks or months. Include what you bought, the cost, mood you were in, and whom you were with.

Be as honest as possible. After a few weeks, take a red pencil and indicate those purchases which were impulsive, unnecessary, or induced by a sale, loneliness, or anger.

You will find a certain spending pattern. Once you are aware of your spending habits, you can deliberately start making changes. Some couples have been able to control their spending by agreeing that neither would spend more than a given amount (for example, $25) without first discussing the purchase with each other. Often they find that, upon further reflection, the urge to buy a particular item is gone.

A person's family background often determines how he or she handles money. Discuss with your spouse such things as how money was handled in your home when you were growing up. Communication can prevent arguments and increase understanding.

Programming Your Dollars

Two-paycheck couples pay double Social Security (as the couple's benefits at retirement will usually be the same as if the wife had never worked outside the home) and higher income taxes (because they are pushed into a higher tax bracket). Time is valuable when both husband and wife work, so they tend to spend more on items such as food, clothes, transportation, and extra services.

To establish a spending and saving plan you need a knowledge of your net income (income after deductions) as well as your fixed and flexible expenses. Be realistic in your expectations. Otherwise you might set up a budget plan and soon discard it as unworkable. Having the support of your spouse and other family members is important.

The following expense categories might help you in setting up your personal budget:

Fixed expenses: Rent or mortgage, insurance, installment loans, utility budget payments, an emergency fund (pay yourself first!). Some fixed expenses are regular; some are irregular.

The following practice might make it easier for you to have money available when an irregular fixed expense arises (such as auto insurance in January, or a vacation in August). Take the total yearly amount for that expenditure and divide it by the number of months (or paychecks). Many people find it easier to put aside small sums of money every month than to come up with one large sum.

Flexible expenditures: Food expenses, clothing, household expenses, transportation, health, personal expenses, utility charges, charge account payments, and miscellaneous — gifts, education, recreation.

Your take-home pay, minus all fixed and flexible expenditures, is what you have left over to save, invest, or use toward retirement.

Calculate Your Net Worth

Your net worth is simply how much you are worth in dollars and cents. Calculating your financial net worth is a simple procedure which can be helpful if done regularly. You should do this exercise once a year, or more often if your financial situation changes.

There are several benefits of going through these calculations: (1) You will get an exact picture of your financial situation at a particular point in time. (2) You will have records of proof for insurance claim purposes. (3) You will have a prepared statement which you may need when applying for a loan.

To calculate your net worth, add up the value of all liquid assets, such as monies in checking accounts, savings accounts, mutual funds, stocks, bonds, U.S. Savings Bonds, and any money invested in Treasury Bills and other securities. All these are liquid assets which can be readily converted into cash. Add to the figure the value of your other assets, such as your home, car(s), furniture, and jewelry. Be sure to calculate at today's market value, which is the price at which you could sell these possessions today.

After you calculate your assets, make a list of all your liabilities, i.e., everything you owe. First add up short-term liabilities, such as credit card balances and other bills you owe. Then add in intermediate- (installment credit) and long-term (mortgage) debts. Your list of liabilities will give you a good picture of how much you owe and will be helpful for future comparisons. Have your debts increased in dollar value? Have you taken on longer term debts a consolidation loan, or secondary mortgage loan? Have you recently analyzed your credit rating?

Your net worth is all that you own minus all that you owe at a particular time. Use this figure to help you in analyzing your financial situation. Has your net worth decreased substantially because of added debt? Are you "asset rich" because of inflation, but low in liquidity? How much would you like to increase your net worth in the future?

Plan Ahead

Think ahead 10, 20, to 30 years and picture yourself in possible situations. What will some of your needs be, and how are you planning to meet them? This includes analyzing present and future credit levels, insurance coverage, savings and investments, pensions, a record-keeping system, trusts, wills and taxes.

The following list includes examples of financially related tasks that you and your spouse may need to consider. Check off takes you need to take some action on:

- Purchase adequate insurance coverage.
- Establish a financial identity (checking account, loan, credit rating — in own name).

—Set up a budget.

—Develop an effective financial record-keeping system.

—Discuss with family members your short-, intermediate-, and long-term financial goals.

—Plan and provide for childbearing and rearing costs.

—Plan and provide for present and future housing needs.

—Provide for career goals, children's education fund, or own educational fund.

—Develop a savings plan.

—Establish retirement goals and work toward them. Evaluate and update your plans.

—Identify and use community and government resources.

—Identify and use professional help when available.

—Anticipate responsibilities for aging parents or other dependents.

—Re-evaluate and adjust your standard of living and spending levels as they relate to health, age, and income.

—Assess and evaluate your estate plan, including wills, trusts, and property transfers.

—Be sure to communicate with family members about these plans.

—Consider changing housing needs for your family and how you can prepare for them (repairs, relocation, changes in family size).

All the strategies discussed in this article are basic and necessary for survival in a changing economic climate. By developing a money management system, your family can achieve your goals and retain financial control in uncertain economic times.

1. Sometime between now and the end of the year, make a family financial inventory (see Extension Publication 633 "Inventory of the Household"). Attach all the receipts that you have for your possessions and take pictures of your valuables. Keep these in a safe place, such as a safe deposit box, or a special home office file.

FIRST BIRTHDAY—Tametra Isheim celebrated her first birthday July 16 with a Walt Disney character theme party. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Isheim Jr. and granddaughter of Rev. and Mrs. R.N. Sams and Mrs. Catherine Isheim and the late Edward Isheim Sr. Her great-grandparents are Mrs. Minnie Moultrie and the late Oran Moultrie. Decorations were designed by Billy Farve.

2. Write down all your expenditures for one month, however small. At the end of each week, review your list and see if you can see a spending pattern. Take a red pencil and mark items which you feel were unnecessary or impulse purchases. This will help control your spending.

3. Have each person in your family write down one specific goal he or she is saving for. Select a family goal for next year.

Because the first two workshops conducted by the Altar Society were so successful the ladies decided to hold weekly workshops instead of monthly, each Monday starting at 10 a.m. in the parish hall.

Any lady interested in helping and with time to spare is invited to come join in making gifts for the annual Christmas Boutique.

New ideas as well as material of any kind will be appreciated. Next meeting of the group is scheduled for Monday, July 23. Bring a bag lunch! Drinks will be provided.

The monthly meeting of St. Ann-St. John Altar Society will be Wednesday, July 25 at 11 a.m. in the parish hall.

Chairpersons for the July luncheon-social following the meeting immediately at noon in the parish hall are Mrs. Edward Kenmore and Mrs. Christian Neubig.

Donation $2. Public is invited.

Second Biloxi Day at World's Fair set

Monday will be the second "Biloxi Day" in the Mississippi Pavilion at the World's Fair.

Special recognition will be given to Biloxi, and Biloxi entertainers and craftsmen will be featured throughout the day.

Entertainers include the Gulf Coast Jazz Society Jazz Traditions, the First Baptist Church of Biloxi Handbell Choir, vocalist Andrea Moore and the Biloxi All-Star Jumpers performing jump rope skills.

Craftsmen featured will be Estelle Lacoste making pictures out of boat-wood and Raymond St. Amant building model size boats, clipper ships and schooners.

Reservations can be made at the Biloxi Chamber of Commerce to participate in Biloxi Day. Fees of $26 per adult and $23 per child include bus fare and entrance into the fair. For more information or to make your reservation, call the Biloxi Chamber of Commerce at 374-2717.

The reign of God is hidden, even imperceptible. The Christian often sees few results for much effort. At times one's hard work yields no fruit. But God is God. The wheat, the mustard seed, and the yeast will yield the hundred-fold.

Kindly remember in your prayers Rodney Michael Bradley, son of Deirdre Bradley; Brian Christopher Butler, son of Robert and Ezell Butler Jr.; Tobyn Patrice Lewis, daughter of Vanessa L. Lewis; and Sharmaine Genevieve Rieux, daughter of Roland Rieux and Kimberly Bradley, who were baptized at the 9 a.m. Mass last Sunday.

Kindly remember in your prayers Edward Lizana who was buried in New Orleans this past week.

The Knights of Peter Claver are invited to attend the installation of Third Degree Officers of the Knights of Columbus at the KC Hall tomorrow. A banquet will precede the installation ceremony. Bishop Howze will also be an invited guest.

Our Gospel Choir will practice on Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

The Concerned Citizens Organization of Hancock County will hold its regular meeting this Thursday at 7 p.m. in our cafeteria.

The Parish Council invites parishioners to attend a Mass of Appreciation for its pastor next Sunday at 9 a.m. A reception will follow in the cafeteria.

MASS SCHEDULE
Sunday, 7 and 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.
Daily, Monday through Saturday, 6:30 a.m.
Saturday (Vigil) 6 p.m.
Mother of Perpetual Help Novena at beginning of Tuesday Mass.
Confessions are heard half-hour prior to weekend Masses and upon request.
